A COMMUNITY GATHERING TO CELEBRATE AN INTERNATIONAL HOLIDAY

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

August 28 will be an international holiday. Representatives of fifteen or more powerful nations will assemble at Paris to sign the Kellogg Anti-War Treaty, which binds the signatory governments "to renounce war as an instrument of national policy." This treaty marks a new epoch in international affairs. It is the logical consummation of the Great War. Nations have seen the tragic futility of armed conflicts, and have decided to attempt to outlaw them. August 28 should therefore be an occasion of jubilant celebration.

We in Toronto should not let this significant day pass unnoticed. Religious leaders particularly should mark it fittingly. The ideal of peace is endorsed by all religious faiths. It is one of the fundamentals upon which priest, minister and rabbi agree. We, therefore, suggest that the religious leaders of Toronto all agreed and united join together in a great peace service to be held on the twenty-eighth day of August —a service which would be non-sectarian in scope—a service in which Jew and Christian, Protestant and Catholic, Buddhist and Hindu can join in extolling and thanking the God of all mankind who is also the source of peace for this new development in human relationships. Thus would not only be celebrated peace between nations, but religious peace in our own community would also be demonstrated.

BRITISH JUSTICE

As a result of the Sacco and Vanzetti case, the attention of the British public was called to Oscar Slater, the German Jew, who had been found guilty of murder almost a score of years ago, who had been sentenced to death but whose sentence was commuted to life imprisonment because doubts as to his guilt had been raised. Last year those who felt Slater was a victim of injustice renewed their agitation for redress for him. As a result of their efforts, Slater was first pardoned. Subsequently on his demand, he was retried and found not guilty. The British Government then proceeded to compensate him, and has given him a sum of almost $30,000. British justice has been enriched by what will eventually be another of its beautiful traditions.

Slater was a German, a member of a people who had but recently been at war with England. Besides that he was a Jew, a member of a religious minority frequently despised and persecuted. In addition to that he was penniless and friendless. Yet the British government did not hesitate publicly to confess that its courts had been in error, that this weak, insignificant individual merited the apology of the world's greatest empire. All lovers of justice rejoice that Great Britain endeavoured to amend the wrong done to Slater, while Britishers will thrill all the more at the thought of British justice.

ONE YEAR AFTER

On August 22, a year shall have passed since the execution by the State of Massachusetts of Sacco and Vanzetti, in whose behalf the whole world was agitated. Since then nothing has arisen to refute the feeling held by many that these men were the victims of

"HIGH BROWS" AT THE OLYMPICS

We were rather surprised to read in the "Jewish Bulletin" that an art exposition was included in the list of competitions held at the last Olympiad in Amsterdam. Naturally a Jew won the first prize, a gold medal, else we should not have read about the event in the "Bulletin." The winner was Isaac Israels, son of the famous artist Joseph Israels.

We always had an idea that the Olympics was merely a series of athletic and sporting competitions, and that the only intellectual pursuits indulged in were the discussions and debates in the committee rooms concerning protests filed by discontented representatives. If there was any suggestion of an artistic touch at the Olympics it was the reported activity of the cameras in photographing our Canadian "lily," Miss Catherwood.

If it is true that at the Olympics they are going in for "high-brow stuff," then we may expect to find them staging Menorah debates between the Varsity and McGill groups, Friday night lectures, and recitations of "The Cremation of Sam McGee" and "The Face on the Bar Room Floor."

CHARITY FAKERS

Last week a number of Toronto Jews were shocked to hear that a certain individual who had been passing as a scholarly rabbi, the translator of the Mishnah and Talmud into English, was discovered to be a faker and impostor. In the short time of his stay in Toronto he had managed to collect a considerable sum of money, ostensibly as payments for his alleged learned books, and had enjoyed the respect and reverence due to a scholar of eminence. It was fortunate that Rabbi Berger stumbled on the truth and brought the impostor to time.

Recently quite a stir was caused in New York by the discovery of the operation of gangs of fakers who were collecting money for various charity institutions which never existed. So numerous and far-reaching had these depradations become that the city authorities were obliged to take a hand in the matter. A commission was appointed to investigate the charity scandal, and its recommendations are being acted upon by the municipal authorities.

It will behoove the local community to take some steps to provide a check on the army of agents and collectors that present themselves here on behalf of all sorts of institutions in divers parts of the universe. Perhaps it might be well to appoint a commission to pass on the credentials of all who approach the public for funds. It is not always the loss of the money that hurts so much as the chagrin at being taken in by fakers. And what is worse is that the exposure of one impostor will hurt the chances of honest representatives of worthy causes getting the support merited by their institutions.

Editor, CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

This word and its meaning as given in the dictionary) "a lamentation; a tale of grief, sorrow or complaint," and its derivation "Jeremiah," has been called to mind by your recent editorial by A.B.B. on "Summer Jewishness," which has also recalled a couple of stories current many years ago in New York when Far Rockaway Beach had seemingly been given over entirely to Jews, as a summer resort. Mrs. Tilton and Mrs. Stone, two non-Jewish ladies from the west, having decided, from its location on the map, to spend their summer holiday there, arrived at the hotel and Mrs. Tilton proceeded to register their names, while Mrs. Stone took a hurried survey of the surroundings which revealed the Semitic nature of the guests, rushed to the desk and taking the pen from Mrs. Tilton, whispered, "We'll never get accommodation here with our names" and when the clerk turned from looking to see what rooms he had vacant, he found the names Tiltonstein and Stonehelmer.

The other relates how a very prominent and wealthy New York banker, desiring to gratify his wife's wish to spend the summer at a certain hotel in Lakewood, N.J., took a run down to see what arrangements he could make for his family and servants. Now this particular hotel was so exclusive and exJewsive as to have a sign up "No Hebrews." The proprietor, recognizing him, felt it would be bad policy to refuse him accommodation and tipped the rooming clerk off to make the rates so high that it would discourage him. Upon being told the rates for the only suite available the banker remarked: "Your rates are certainly very much higher than I was led to expect they would be but, as my wife wishes to spend the summer here, I will take this suite." He then enquired whether they had stabling accommodation in connection with the hotel as he wished to bring his carriage and horses. The clerk, grasping this as a possible deterrent, made the price almost prohibitive and Mr. Banker turned to him and said quietly "But, my young friend, my coachman and horses are not Jews." So much for "Summer Jewishness." Now let us return to Jeremiah and his trials.

There seems to be no question as to there being much in Lamentation and Prophecy of Jeremiah, in view of the prophet's anxiety over the waywardness of the nation of Israel at that time, to justify the coinage of the word Jeremiad, but there is another phase of Jeremiah's prophecy pertaining to the times in which we now live to which the Jews, as a chosen people, seem to pay as little heed, outside Zionism, as did Israel of old hearken to Jeremiah, and which so-called Christians seem to entirely ignore.

There is a common saying that "an onlooker sees most of the game" and so to one not under the Abrahamic covenant regarding the land, and not blinded by the claims of Anglo-Israelism, reading these prophecies, it is surprising that there should be such divisions among Zionists regarding Palestine, revealed in your editorials, especially so in view of the prophecy of Isaiah. To the Jewish people the best antidote to "Summer Jewishness" will be found in the sixtieth chapter of Isaiah.

Editor, CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

Just to let you and the readers of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW know that I am at present in Finland, a most enchanting country. The City of Helsingfors where I find myself writing this note has a very fine organized Jewish community—its own parochial schools and a splendid Zionist Organization. The rabbi and leaders of the community met with me here and I received a most hearty welcome.

This evening I leave for Leningrad, the gateway to the Soviet Republic. According to schedule, I should have been three days ago in Russia, but something happened. Visits into Russia are not so easily obtained. But everything does come to him that waits. Hence at present between the covers of my passport is found stamped, a permit for a month's stay in the once-upon-a-time land of Czars.

I anticipate seeing much of the Jewish colonies founded through the generosity of American Israel.

With best wishes, I am,
Faithfully yours,
HARRY J. STERN.

THE SOCIALIST PRO-PALESTINE COMMITTEE

The second Socialist International at a conference in Brussels last week decided to establish a pro-Palestine committee to keep in touch with the activities of the Jewish settlement in Palestine. Originally the suggestion to establish such a committee was strenuously opposed by several of the Jewish Socialists. The representatives of the Poele Zion group arranged to have another meeting of the International executive, and at this meeting the resolution was adopted. It was strongly supported by the leading Socialist labour men of the world, including Arthur Henderson, of England; Eduard Bernstein, the German Socialist leader; Leon Blum, of France, and Emile Vandervelde, of Belgium.

It is interesting to note that many of the staunchest supporters of Zionism among the non-Jews are recruited from the ranks of labour. The firmest friends in Britain are Arthur Henderson, Col. Wedgewood, Col. Kenworthy, Ramsay McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Snowden. All these people are Socialist. Emile Vandervelde, the Belgian Socialist leader, recently visited Palestine and wrote some very flattering and encouraging letters and memoranda concerning the prospects of the Jewish experiment in Palestine.

Zionism in its essence is a radical and revolutionary movement, aiming as it does to reorganize Jewish life on a new basis. Socialists, who advocate the policy of radical change, are really best attuned to sympathize with and appreciate the revolutionary trend in the moulding of the Jewish future.

We cannot but welcome the establishment of a new medium for disseminating information concerning Palestine. The Zionist experiment in Palestine is one of the most romantic and daring ventures in history. Let the world know about it. In the course of time some information concerning it may reach some Jewish quarters which have hitherto managed to remain impervious to its inspiring influence.

"TELLING THE WORLD" AN UNUSUAL PICTURE

"Telling the World," an unusual comedy-melodrama starring William Haines and dealing with the transmission of important news by radio and telegraph, comes next week to Loew's Theatre. Its Oriental scenes are said to be among the most realistic and picturesque ever filmed. Sam Wood directed this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering, which presents a new screen find in the person of Anita Page, who plays the leading feminine role.

It is Haines' best picture and a wow of a thriller.

Lewis and Dody, world famous funmakers, lead in a great variety show in which several great acts rival the headliners. Marino and Mona Revue is a beautiful musical comedy offering which will create an impression.

AMERICAN JEWS HELP TO DESTROY ANTI-SEMITISM

Peter Smidowitch, vice-president of the Soviet Union, in an interview with an American journalist, Betty Ross, expressed himself as most enthusiastic regarding the efforts made by American Jews to aid in the settlement of Russian Jews on the soil. This effort is recognized in Russia and has helped greatly in reducing anti-semitic prejudices there. In a cable, made public by David A. Brown, chairman of the United Jewish Campaign, Smidowitch, is quoted as saying:

"We have a firm hope in the success of the Jews on the soil and look forward to the new colonies in Crimea and in the Ukraine to develop the cultural level and uplift the standards of native colonists. American Jewish contributions help the government to keep the peace, for then the peasants do not accuse the Soviet Government of granting special privileges to the Jews. Jewish colonization is destroying the artificial differences between the nationalities and is making pogroms a memory of a discarded regime."

The Associated Gospel Churches of Hamilton, Toronto and vicinity are holding a summer conference at Oaklands Park, Hamilton. This Association belongs to the American-European Fellowship for Christian Oneness and Evangelization (continuing the Russian Evangelization Society and Christian Testimony to Jews). The fellowship really includes in its field of prayer and labour such countries as Austria, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Esthonia, Finland, Germany, Latvia, Roumania and Russia, but the Jews of Hamilton, Toronto and vicinity are invited to the summer conference to hear inspirational talks dealing with the deeper Christian life and its problems. Visiting speakers will be missionaries mostly, among them one Dr. Ehrstein, of St. Louis. The Rev. J. N. Millar, 548 Beresford Avenue, Toronto, writes to say that "Rev. W. S. Hottel, president of the Associated Gospel, requests me to mail the enclosed to you with the confidence that you will mention same in an early issue of your valued paper. Any consideration you may give us in this matter will be greatly appreciated." Can you beat it? Well, here is mention of same. THE REVIEW is always indulgent toward the missionaries. They can't help being the way they are. It's congenital.

The high holy days will be upon the Jewish community of the world soon. Presumably at that time the Jew is particularly attuned to a religious message that is genuine, one that comes from the soul of the rabbi to touch gently the human heart. Whether the Jew comes to the synagogue out of habit, out of loyalty to race or religion, as an example to his children or a comfort to his parents or for some other reason, at least he is there as a worshipper waiting to be helped in his daily life if there is any help at hand. What is he helped by as a message heard in the synagogue? Is it a review of a book or a play or the exposition of some general community problem which he loves to hear and which brings him peace and a retreat from a world of worries? Does he want a truly religious talk based on some bible text or does he want to be entertained by arguments proving that Jesus never lived? It would seem that the individual who lives in a period when time is given to everything in the world except meditation and reflection would prefer to hear a religious message stated simply enough for a child to understand and constructive enough for a child to take home with him. Professor John Edgar McFadyen, of Glasgow, Scotland, once told a graduating class of the Garrett Biblical Institute (a Methodist seminary affiliated with Northwestern University) that "People do not care to hear a minister talk about international relations, the stock exchange, or similar matters. They want to hear about religion in which he is a specialist. If a minister talks about secular matters in the pulpit there is certain to be someone in the pew who knows more about the subject than he does. A minister is to make it his chief business to interpret the Bible." This advice advanced to Methodist neophytes can be of practical use to Jewish rabbis as well. If heeded it should guide all ministers away from the lure of power through oratory to the quieter place of real ministry. The rabbi who delivers lectures instead of religious messages does it because he believes his people want it. They themselves may be mistaken in their habit of forever seeking entertainment. For how does a worshipper turn down peace for diversion except through mistake?

The intrusion of birth control among the Jewish masses has been recognized during the past year as worthy a place in the list of troubles besetting the race. The English-Jewish press everywhere has taken note of this new phenomenon indicating that no one country is alone in showing a decrease in births among Jews. It has been said that the number of births among Russian Jews is now smaller than the number of births among non-Jews. The decrease in the birth rate among German Jews causes serious alarm there where the problem of intermarriage also tends to reduce German Jewry. Last year during Health Week in London, England, figures on the Jewish population were given out by Dr. Thomas, for thirty years health officer in Whitechapel. He said that until 1897 the birth rate among Jewish families in the East End of London was rarely below forty per 1,000. This rate continued until 1912. It has now dropped to thirteen per 1,000. Dr. Thomas said that possibly in no other part of London could such a marked decrease in the birth rate be found. The Christian population in the same borough continues at a birth rate of thirty-five per 1,000. In America, of course, birth control is quite evident among the Jews. A twelfth child marries a twelfth child and the couple have two children, preferably an heir and an heiress, preferably a stylish five years apart. Some people name this race suicide and frown down on it very crossly calling for a Roosevelt to preach against such practice, and offer prizes for large families. Others call this phenomenon among Jews birth control and commend it highly as a great blessing. Fewer children and better, say they. But are these fewer really better? shout the others, sneering openly. And so (as Briggs says) far, far into the night—until time tells.

Chalutzim in Search of Settlement

By JULIAN AVI SIGLA

There is a hunger which is far more potent than the mere physical craving for bread, and an abnegation which can be more stoically borne than the pangs of starvation. It is a hunger for soil, a ravenous yearning for land, an insatiate need of settlement. The sensation is common in Eretz Israel to thousands of city-bound workingmen, hoping and aspiring for the day their agricultural redemption can herald for them a new and vigourous life on and for the land.

Yet—strange paradox!—it is a hunger which does not dampen their spirits; the hope of its ultimate satisfaction buoys and keeps them alert though expectant, and in the fullness of time their reward will come. A Chalutz sings when he is hungry; and he is singing in anticipation of the freedom that is promised in this dawn of a new era in Eretz Israel.

There are simple tales to tell of the many thousands of such cases; the simplest of all I heard told the other day.

Before the days of the great influx of immigrants, known locally as "the boom period in immigration," a phenomenal incident which occurred in 1925, there came to Palestine from different places six young and earnest Jews. They were lumped under the generic category of "immigrant-labourers," and their patronymic in the Hebrew language was "Chalutzim," or pioneers. They had come to build their Motherland—penniless perhaps, but full of bounding vitality and strong resistance which are in themselves worth untold gold. There were many such as those.

Poland, Russia, the Ukraine, and a little town in Roumania, coupled with the hard knocks of an inimical national life, had bred a sturdy idealism in these Jewish youngsters; not the essential methods of training in their countries of birth perhaps, but rather the lack of them had fashioned them thus, increasing their desire to start their budding lives in a congenial atmosphere.

They all met on a common ground—in the Workers' Hostel at Tel-Aviv. Then and there a pact was made and pledged. A prior smattering of Hebrew had helped them to overcome the difficulty of language; a diffuse acquaintance with a similar ideology had been immediately effective in cementing a bond of friendship. It is no remarkable feature of the re-settlement of Eretz Israel that then and there one of those small irgunim (organizations) was formed that have made Palestinian Jewish agriculture more than a pursuit—a successful social experiment, in fact.

Settlement is not spontaneous; it comes by degrees. There is first the novitiate period—the labour in a large group and the constant, backbreaking tuition; then there is the graduation to the next stage—the doing of responsible work; finally, there may, by luck, come actual colonization. Throughout there runs the feeling of contented endeavour, though the pangs of hunger for the ultimate goal persist.

These six—Sasha, Emmanuel, Zeev, Mordecai, David, and Isaac—were not impatient—in the beginning. They left Tel-Aviv with a little money in their common fund, their objective—ha-Galil. They tramped and spoke and philosophized under the warm summer skies for a week. Then their funds gave out. It was fortunate for the sextette that they had come into the "hospitality belt" of Palestine: the verdant and evergreen Emek, then different from the Emek of to-day because less dotted with the centres of Jewish agrarian effort.

There was not much doing that summer, and the band drifted from place to place, from kvutzah to kvutzah, eking out a daily living by sundry odd jobs. Their great chance came in the swamp-reclamation works in the Emek, when their existence was officially recognized by one of the pioneer-groups undertaking a sub-contract job.

"Hevra," cried David enthusiastically one evening, bursting in upon his comrades eating their evening bread and tomatoes outside their tent in the compound, "to-morrow there is work! We are going out to the marshes."

On the morrow they went jubilantly to the marshes, and there, stripped to the waist, wielded their picks and shovels at the long canals which were a part of the scheme. Soon they became sunburned and bronzed; their skin peeled off from back, shoulders and breast in long strips, their faces freckled and browned, their hair became bleached under that raging sun, but in their hearts they were content and expectant.

Of an evening, gathered round in a small circle when no other activity claimed their attention in the large kvutzah, they talked of their aim in life—to be settled on the land, comrades all, fighting their way upwards towards the common end of maintaining a proposed Eretz Israel. They became members of the Histadrut, they discarded their title of "Chalutzim" and proudly referred to themselves as "poalim," or labourers. And on the morrow, again to the pestilence of the marshes they were reclaiming for their people.

Sometimes, they would stroll out, arm-in-arm, to an eminence overlooking their scene of labours, under the strong moonlight, they would point with pride at this or that finished section, or contemplate the little encampment of tents perched on the edge of the swamps and festering grasses.

"Who knows?" said Mordecai to Zeev, "perhaps one of these days we shall be considered worthy for settlement; and profit from our labours now."

It was a wistful aspiration that permeated them all; the ultima thule of their hopes—to be allowed to settle here, and call this spot their own, a heritage from the Jewish people.

But Zeev died. The arduous work and the infinite toil has sapped his strength less than the reek and stench of the swamp, which bred fever. His comrades mourned him day and night—at labour and at refreshment. Their hands while busy with the picks and shovels, communicated to the soil their unashamed sorrow; their tears wetted the land.

"Zeev is dead," lamented Sasha in an innermost thought, and it seemed as though his heart would break, because they had both spent their boyhood in the same town in Russia.

"Zeev is lying yonder," thought Isaac mournfully, and his eyes filled and overflowed, because he was, if anything, nearer to Zeev than any other of them. "Why can't Zeev be standing here now, joking at me," gloomed Emmanuel, because the bright badinage of his dead boy-friend has enlivened the day—the toil and moil of the hard day—for him.

But it bred in them a keener desire to get settled, and in some form to commemorate him.

The work ended; the land was wrested from its age-long neglect, and transformed into a fertile place, brown with the overturned clods the tractor had left in its busy wake. It was ready for settlement.

Then came the suspense, the long hours of the night when each lay awake busy with the eternal thought, are we to be settled? It was question that stalked at their side while sleeping, talking and walking.

One bright morning, after a week of weary waiting and longing when the last touches were being put to that magnificent endeavour, the man from the Zionist headquarters in Jerusalem came to the place. He was met by a hundred pairs of eager eyes, some of which would, he thought pityingly, be lugubrious and pained when that morning's task was over.

"We have consulted with the Agricultural Workers' Federation," he said, "and drawn up a list of people who are going to be settled here. The Kvutzah can consist of no more than sixty units, and this must include the women-comrades, married or unmarried. All of you cannot expect to be settled here, but patience, my lads, and you will succeed. Eretz Israel is yours because you are working for it. Don't blame us if we cannot do everything; we are doing the best we can; the Keren Hayesod is taxing itself to its utmost capacity to settle you all."

The Keren Hayesod! They watched him with avid eyes as he produced his list; he had been joined by other representatives of the various workers' organizations interested in the settlement of the pioneers. It was a thrilling moment for all, then, when the names were read.

ATTENTION, FANS!

No games were played in the Jewish Community Loop, Monday, August 6, owing to civic holiday. Tuesday only one game was played between the Y.M.H.A. team and Judaean Benevolent, the Judaeans winning, 13 to 12, in an exciting game, Madonick, their pitcher, getting four hits. On Wednesday night, owing to a misunderstanding, the Mount Sinai team failed to show up for their game against Sunnysides, losing by default. In the exhibition game which was played, Sunnysides beat an all-star team 5 to 2. The late game between Herzls and Tuex was one of the feature games of the year. Harry Sniderman's Tuex team, playing wonderful ball to win out 1 to 0, Herb Weiss starring with his smart catches in centre field. Harold Mehr was also good, while Harry Sniderman was responsible for the only run, his infield out in the first inning scoring Ben Solway who together with Sniderman got the only two hits that Wilson allowed the Tuex team. The win put Tuex tie with Leonards for first place. On Monday last Judaeans made sure of first place in the Business Men's group by defeating Sunnysides 9 to 6, all the winners with the exception of Sweig, the pitcher, getting one or more hits. In the late game Bnai Brith were leading Leonards 4 to 3 in the last half of the third inning, with Leonards having the bases full and only one out, when the lights came on and the game was called. As a result, for the remainder of the season, there will be only one game each night, the games in the Business Men's group being discontinued, the president, Max Cooper, declaring the two teams in the lead as finalists for the group. In the future there will be a feature senior loop game each night starting at 7 p.m. Following are the results of the games played last week:

hysteria, and that they were put to death because of the economic views they held rather than for any crime that they committed. A fund has been raised so that the full records of their trial and appeals will be preserved in book forms. Twelve bulky volumes will be required to contain the history of the case of these executed men. Thus for years and years, the controversy over the justice of their penalty will be continued.

One cannot but shudder as one thinks that in the future, Sacco and Vanzetti will yet be found innocent, and wonder how the State responsible for their death will make atonement. The very thought that men may have been executed for crimes of which afterwards they may be found to be innocent, should cause sensitive governments to abolish capital punishment. It is better than one thousand felons should escape the death penalty than that one individual innocent and upright should be put to death.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

TRUCK KILLS BOY

Isidore Kleiman, aged 5, 31 Oxford Street, was killed Friday night when he jumped off the back of a horse-drawn ice-wagon, which he had mounted to get a piece of ice, and was crushed by an oncoming motor truck.

DEATH

Abraham Rosenfeld, uncle of Fanny Rosenfeld, Toronto's sprinter and member of the relay team at the Olympic sports, died Tuesday, at his home, 58 St. Andrew's Gardens. Mr. Rosenfeld, who was sixty-one years of age, had been ill four weeks with kidney trouble. His last words to Fanny as he bid her good-bye at the Union Station, were, "When you come back we will have a big surprise for you." He was extremely fond of Fanny and one of his delights was to play cards with her. Born in Russia, he came to Toronto thirty-five years ago and was in the coal business. For some time prior to his death, he was unable to read newspapers, but he expressed the wish that all papers relating to the Olympic gathering at Amsterdam, be kept so that he could read of Fanny's exploits when he was well enough to do so. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Jules Allen and Mrs. Herbert Allen, and two sons, Louis and Joseph, and one brother, M. Rosenfeld, all of Toronto. The funeral was held, Tuesday, at 3 o'clock, from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jule Allen, St. Andrew's Gardens to Goel Tzedek Synagogue Cemetery, Jones Avenue. Rabbi Samuel Sachs officiated.

JASPER PARK LODGE IN THE HEART OF THE ROCKIES

It's not very often that you find the gay whirl of society life pictured in a setting of rugged forest-covered, snow-capped mountains far away from city streets. Jasper National Park, however, proves the exception. Here in the midst of towering Rocky Mountains, society sports itself from the ultra-modern Jasper Park Lodge, where the guest enjoys all the luxury and comfort of a great city hotel.

Golf, swimming, motor trips, trail riding and mountain hiking are a few of the enjoyable events with which to round out each day's pleasure. Music and dancing lend a fascination to the night that exceeds the imagination.

For an enjoyable holiday take the fast through "Confederation" for Jasper National Park.

Any Canadian National Railways Agent will gladly give you full information and literature on Jasper National Park and Jasper Park Lodge.

The president of the Central Executive Committee of the Far-Eastern Soviet Government has decided to extend the frontiers of the Bureya region in Siberia, which has been allocated for Jewish colonization work, to the north across the railway line making a total area of 3,895,000 hectares. The new areas consist mostly of cedar forests lying on the river slopes. Six hundred and forty Jewish settlers have arrived so far at Tichonkoye, the centre of the work.

THREE BIG LITTLE WORDS

HAPPY NEW YEAR

AT the advent once more of the High Holidays comes the beautiful Jewish custom of sending New Year's Greetings to one's relatives and friends. This custom, originated by the Jewish people, is thousands of years old. In ancient Judaea the town crier would carry the message to the dwellers in the villages and the cities, to the country-folk gathered in the towns to celebrate Rosh Hashonah in the traditional manner.

With the flight of time the honourable profession of town crier disappeared. But the deeply rooted custom among the Jewish people of sending "L'Shono Tovu" greetings remained. And there gradually grew up a custom of sending personal greeting cards through the mails. Many of these cards were works of art, and are treasured as heirlooms to this day.

When cities and towns were small, and one knew one's friends intimately, this system worked perfectly. But as cities grew, and one's circle of friends extended, it was inevitable that in the hurly-burly of sending hundreds of cards, some cherished friends were overlooked. The endless explanations and heart-burnings caused the development of a new and better system.

Extend your NEW YEAR GREETINGS to your relatives and friends through the SPECIAL NEW YEAR EDITION of THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW to be issued Friday, September 14th.

Fill out the coupon and return to THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 288 St. James Street, Montreal, or 319 Bay Street, Toronto, before Wednesday, September 5th.

The charge for these announcements is $2, payable in advance.
